If you are not already receiving the same error message even ^ the update, then there may be more updates available µ the application. Although it is unbelievable to use, some users have reported that they have received the "auxiliary service error" on skin. µ Speaking about this, if you haven't updated your extensions for some time now, then this is more likely to be the reason why you're not getting the service error message from the skin helper. This will allow enough time to update your ^, as well as allow plugins to be installed correctly and replace any files you want. here that it's interesting, users get access to a personalized list of add-ons. You should not note that Kodi does not update most of its add-ons and plugins automatically. This should contain an option labeled "auxiliary service error", click and right-click to see your µ. The usual running for this will not restart your subscription. Although, keep in mind that you don't need to keep your app turned off for two to three minutes before you launch it again.
